INNOVATIONS

Vibrational Medicine: The Canyon Ranch Project

In 1985 Dr. Drewry designed and built, for the purpose of enhancing all types of hands-on bodywork, two Vibrational Healing rooms at Canyon Ranch Health & Fitness Center in Tucson, Arizona. The rooms were designed using sound, color, essential oils, homeopathy, and brainwave entrainment - all in complementary and synergistic octaves of vibration. Equipment in the room: a massage table vibrating at selected brainwave frequencies between 4-20 Hz; headphones connected to the table through which Monroe Institute Hemi-Sync recordings were played; a color wheel in the ceiling; classical music recorded in the seven keys of music to correspond with the seven major spectral colors and the seven major chakras; essential oils in vibrational resonance with the sound and the color.

Psychoacoustic Research: The Human Voice in Energetic Healing

Dr. Drewry uses the voice to “scan” the body to locate and resonate an individual's Fundamental Frequency. Her research shows this causes an immediate and significant drop in brainwave frequencies from beta to theta plus left/right brain hemispheric synchronization. See following endorsement from Dr. Stanley Krippner....

 “The Human Voice in Energetic Healing” represents an original contribution to the growing field of energetic healing. Its originator, Dr. Damaris Drewry, has developed a transformational program that draws from ancient Kahuna healing traditions as well as modern neuroscience, a program in which the client become a co-therapist, taking the initiative for needed attitudinal, and behavior changes.”

- Stanley Krippner, Ph.D., Professor Emeritus, Author, and Recipient of many awards presented by the American Psychological Association

The Effect of After-Death Communication on the Grieving Process (Dissertation Topic)

ADC events are exceptional experiences as they contribute to human awareness, and some can catalyze self-actualization. Participants in this research experienced long-term, transformational changes in awareness of self, relationship with the deceased, and new understanding of the meaning of life, death, and the divine. 18 types of deceased-initiated communication are defined along with cues for recognition of these events that may be overlooked; immediate and long-term benefits (comfort, hope, forgiveness, release of guilt, resolution of resentment and unfinished business, reassurance of continuing love, and precognitive warnings). PMH Atwater: "you are really onto something here and it should be published in all the major journals..."

Private Practice:
Beyond Talk Therapy

Dr. Drewry has developed an integrative method of facilitating physical healing, emotional clearing, and spiritual emergence using principles of bioenergetic psychology. The body believes every word we say and records our history in every cell: clearing the subconscious programs and emotional charge from decisions made during traumatic events makes transformation possible in a very short time.
